B. C. Hall

B.C. Hall first fished in 1934 as a reserve, and then in every International (apart from 1965/6 when he only managed the ‘unofficial’ Autumn event) until 1972. An extraordinary and unique record. He was remarkably consistent, fishing three or four times a week and favouring his short line technique. Generally he was fairly quiet but if little was happening he was inclined to suddenly shout ‘Come on up, you blue-nosed bastards’. Here he is when President in 1969 with Sidney Taylor, (Captain) and Bill Milne (Secretary) immediately before the Friendly on Grafham Water.

This line-up from the 1952 International, simply labelled ‘The England Team’, and noting the fact that ‘Colonel Ruddy and Harold Armstrong are missing’. We know who fished and what they caught, but putting names to faces is tricky.

Once more, photographed outside the Lodge at Loch Leven.
