Reservoirs having won the Championship on Chew Valley (twice) and on Grahham. Their star man with a captain's performance was Sandy Forgan with his Green Peter and Black Pennell fished on an Intermediate line in the shallow comparatively calm waters. The Welsh Team came to Bewl with an impressive record of three wins in the last five matches, and enjoyed extremely good results on practice days. John Williams from Anglesey was their top rod, with three fish for 5lb 9oz taken on a Teal and Black fished on an Intermediate Line.

The International Committee have been considering the rules for their matches and the rule about speed of retrieve is a difficult one. In the gusting wind, the anglers had to keep up a very fast speed of retrieve in order to keep in touch with the flies. An interesting rule suggested for the future is that of allowing anglers to stand while fishing. Apparently the age-old traditional method of boat fishing in Scotland and Ireland is from a standing position. Another suggestion being made by anglers, was that an International match should be fished over two days in order to avoid the possibility of adverse weather conditions marring the event.

Despite the gusting wind this proved to be a good match with the English team showing that they can fish and compete with the best in adverse conditions.

ENGLAND DOMINATE LEVEN

Chris Langton landing a fish off Dunlop Bay.

IAN MUCKLE reports on the Autumn International pretty bright, however, and most combatants struck to the deep tactics, though some floating lines were also in use. Boats were moving around, always a sign that the fishing is not exactly full of action, and the St Serf's attracted a number of anglers, with the shallows off Dunlop Bay seeming to produce a few trout.

As the reckoning hour of 6pm approached, the usual tick — tack from boat to boat showed a lot of "zeros" being signalled, though the message also filtered through that a couple of the English lads had three trout apiece. And was it imagination, or did the pipes welcoming the teams back into the harbour sound more doleful than they did in the morning?

Even before the official weigh-in, two things were abundantly clear. The English team had won and won well, and the home country was relegated to tail ender. And so it turned out—England first with 18 fish for 26lb 1½oz., Wales second with 12 for 15lb 2oz; Ireland third with 12 for 10lb 10oz; and finally Scotland with eight for 6lb 11oz.

England's Chris Ogborne maintained his high reputation by producing the best basket and winning the coveted Brown Bowl. His four trout weighed 5lb 8oz, all taken from the north between the Green Isle and Queich Mouth, and well spread-out throughout the day, with one at 11am, one at 12.30pm, one at 2pm, and the last at 5pm.

Chris proved he could master Leven under various sets of conditions. His successful tactics included the use of a sinking line and a Soldier Palmer. Chris Howitt and Graham Smith also made major contributions to the English total, and Paul Canning's superb 3lb 10oz specimen, the heaviest of the match, provided further backing.

Top Welshman was Peter Bevan, whose brace totalled 4lb 3oz, and whose killing patterns were the Mallard and Claret and Colonel Downman. Iltyd Griffiths had one more fish than Peter but for a smaller weight of 3lb 2oz.

Deep fishing

Deep fishing

For Ireland, Toby Bradshaw was leading light with 3 for 2lb 13oz, though his weight would have been heavier if he'd been allowed to weigh in his two freshwater mussels – an indication of how deep he was fishing. Toby's Dunkeld with its fluorescent green tail did all the damage for him. The Irish team was also well served by Roger McGaughey and Philip McMahon.

Flying a long flag for Scotland was their youngest member Colin Wilkie, whose four trout weighing 3lb 2oz came mainly to a Dunkeld. The other scoring members of the Scots squad brought a trout each to the scales.

So, a big win for a fine English team was the story of the first International match to be held on Loch Leven since 1981. A total of 50 trout for 58lb 8½oz. was the final tally.
